Wyoming Sorority Members Forced to Admit Trans-Identifying Male as Court Rejects Suit

The complaint adds that Langford is "sexually interested in women" as evidenced by his Tinder profile "through which he seeks to meet women." It is further alleged that Langford took photographs of the women while at a sorority slumber party, where he also is said to have made inappropriate comments.

Despite hearing testimony from the women, some of whom stated Langford had "watched" them undress with an erection, Judge Alan Johnson dismissed the case of Westenbroek v. Kappa Kappa Gamma Fraternity on August 25. Johnson stated that re-defining "woman" to include males was "Kappa Kappa Gamma's bedrock right as a private, voluntary organization and one this Court may not invade."

"It is really uncomfortable. Some of the girls have been sexually assaulted or sexually harassed. Some girls live in constant fear in our home," one of the sisters, Hannah, told Megyn Kelly during an interview on her podcast.

"One sorority member walked down the hall to take a shower, wearing only a towel ... She felt an unsettling presence, turned, and saw [Langford] watching her silently," the court document reads.

"[Langford] has, while watching members enter the sorority house, had an erection visible through his leggings," the suit says. "Other times, he has had a pillow in his lap."

"[He] repeatedly questioned the women about what vaginas look like, breast cup size, whether women were considering breast reductions and birth control," the complaint had claimed.
